Right to Know values creating capacity, social capital and unity. The goal is to create constant communication and connection within the larger community, regardless of location. This communication and connection is fostered through educational listen and learns on topics chosen by the community. Right to Know would be championed by community leaders and church partnerships. A critical piece of creating these events and programs are welcoming, comfortable and accessible meeting spaces.

- 01 Community centers with meeting and classroom space to hold listen and learns
- 02 Street network and shuttle routes accessible to and practical for the community
- 03 Public spaces that accommodate expression and capacity building
- 04 Outdoor courtyards, plazas or parks with collaborative meeting space
